

Notes on applying for membership

What are the criteria for membership of AFEPI Ireland?

- You must be self-employed/freelance (part-time or full-time) as an editor, proofreader and/or indexer;
- You must live and work on the island of Ireland.

Associate membership is suitable for those new to freelance editing, proofreading or indexing; or those who have completed a short internship of less than one year's employment experience with a publisher; or those who have some experience but only basic formal professional training.

Important: there is a six-year limit on Associate membership from the year of joining the Association. You must upgrade to Full membership within that six-year period. After that time, you will not be allowed to renew your membership at Associate level, although you can apply to join as a Full Member at any time. Further details on the six-year Associate Member limit can be found in Upgrading from Associate to Full membership on page 2 of these Notes.

Full membership is open to professionally trained, experienced proofreaders, editors and indexers who will have a number of years of professional in-house and/or freelance experience, in addition to relevant up-to-date formal training and professional development. Further details of the criteria we look for in our Full Members are set out in the sections on Training and professional development and Experience on pages 4 and 5 of these Notes.

How to apply

Read these Notes carefully. You will be assessed on the quality of your application as well as your achievements, and the extent to which you follow the application brief (see also page 7). Fill in the accompanying application form and make digital copies (either scans or photographs) of training certificates.

Send your application and supporting documentation to membership@afepi-ireland.com.

The Membership Committee comprises five experienced Full Members of AFEPI Ireland. They all assess each application carefully and aim to reach a unanimous decision in each case. Once they have completed their assessment, you will be informed of their final decision. You should expect to hear the outcome of your application within four weeks (it often depends on how quickly your referees respond). If you haven't heard from us by then, please get in touch with us at membership@afepi-ireland.com.

If your application is not accepted, you will be told why. You can make a renewed application at a later date, after you have addressed any issues raised by the Membership Committee.

Payment is only requested if your application is approved and an offer of membership is made. If you accept the offer of membership, you will be asked to pay online via our website (details will be supplied at the time). Once your payment has been made, your email address will be added to our AFEPI Ireland email group and you may submit your directory entry for the website (Full Members only) or your contact details for the list of Associates on the website.

Membership of AFEPI Ireland runs from 1 January to 31 December each year. Membership fees are due every year in January, and the official deadline for receipt of all membership renewals is 31 January. Currently, the Full membership annual fee is €100 and the Associate membership fee is €55.

Upgrading from Associate to Full membership

As an Associate Member of AFEPI Ireland, we expect you to be in a position to apply to upgrade to Full membership after two to three years, once you have gained further training and experience, and encourage you to do so.

If you wish to upgrade from Associate to Full membership, you will need to fill in the application form again, making sure to include all the training and experience you've gained since you first applied, and to tick the upgrade box on the application form.

In particular, you MUST provide a training certificate showing that you have successfully passed a tutor-assessed training course in the core skills of editing, proofreading and/or indexing with the Chartered Institute of Editing and Proofreading (CIEP) or the Publishing Training Centre (PTC) or the Society of Indexers (Sol) within the past three years. All three organisations offer online tutor-assessed courses, details of which can be found on their respective websites.

Please keep the six-year limit on this membership level in mind and ensure that you plan to complete your upgrade within that time frame.

AFEPI Ireland offers generous training subsidies to Associate Members wishing to upgrade; check our training subsidy brochure for details of all subsidies and discounts available to you each year.

Adding new core skills (indexing + editing and proofreading)

If you have been accepted as a member (either Associate or Full) for the core skills of editing and/or proofreading and wish to add indexing as a skill, you will need to supply a separate application satisfying the criteria for indexers and sample indexes.

Similarly, if you have been accepted as a member for the core skill of indexing and wish to add editing and/or proofreading as a skill, you will need to supply a separate application satisfying the criteria for editors and proofreaders.

Membership of other editorial organisations

We will take into account current membership of other professional editorial/indexing organisations, such as the Chartered Institute of Editing and Proofreading (CIEP) or the Society of Indexers (Sol), so please make sure to tell us of any other relevant (i.e. editorial and indexing) organisations you may belong to and the level of membership you hold. If you wish us to take these into account when assessing your application, we will ask for your permission to confirm your membership with the organisation(s).

Information you will need to provide

The Membership Committee would like as much information as possible about your background so that they can make an informed judgement about your eligibility. Please include everything that is, or could be, relevant. Tell us what services you provided for each client and tell us about any successes your clients have had as a result (e.g. book award winners or nominees, competition winners or shortlistees, gained an agent or a traditional publishing deal).

Please note that the Committee focuses on the core skills of editing, proofreading, and/or indexing. Other closely related skills, such as development editing or project management, will also be considered. However, other publishing skills less closely related to editorial work – typesetting, design, marketing, writing, mentoring, teaching, lecturing – are NOT included in our criteria and will be discounted.

If you have completed professional training courses, you will need to scan or photograph the certificates and supply them electronically with your application form.

You must fill in all sections of the application form, but you may also supply a CV if you wish. A CV may fill in gaps not covered by the application. We are happy to consider applicants with unusual career paths, so if you're in any doubt about your training or previous experience, please include it.

Key requirements

The four main criteria required by the Membership Committee are: training, experience, projects and references.

Associate membership: You need to provide evidence that you have some formal training in the core skills or proofreading/editing/indexing or have some in-house experience (see Section 1 of the application form), have some experience of using these skills working for clients (Sections 2 and 3), and provide at least one reference from a satisfied client.

Full membership: You need to provide evidence that you have professionally trained in the core skills of proofreading/editing/indexing and/or have substantial, supervised in-house experience (see Section 1). You also need to show you have extensive experience of using these skills working for clients (your own clients or your employer) (Sections 2 and 3), and provide at least two references from satisfied clients or previous employer(s).

Section 1: Training and professional development

As a professional organisation we place great importance on training and ongoing professional development. We need to know that you have been trained in the core skills of proofreading, editing and/or indexing.

Please provide as much information as you can about any formal training courses you have taken, whether in-house or external (even if they were paid for by an employer). Training not yet completed will be discounted.

Training courses: There are a number of great editorial training courses available, several of them provided online (see, for example, PTC, CIEP and Sol courses). If you gained a distinction, merit, etc. in your training please tell us; this will usually help your application.

Associate membership

Applicants for Associate membership who have never worked in publishing MUST have completed some formal training in a core skill (editing, proofreading or indexing).

If you did an internship with a publisher, this may count towards your training score. Please be sure to include this in both the Training section and the Experience section.

Full membership

Applicants for Full membership MUST show evidence of formal training and continuing professional development within the past three years, including evidence that they have successfully passed one or more tutor-assessed courses – commensurate with their editorial experience – with training providers such as the CIEP, PTC, the Sol or equivalent.

The Membership Committee can waive the mandatory tutor-assessed training criteria for applicants with significant in-house publishing experience as part of its assessment of their application, but this waiver is entirely at the discretion of the Membership Committee and its decision is final.

Applicants returning to the profession

If you've taken a break of several years from the profession but have substantial in-house publisher experience (see the Key requirements section on page 4), we will want to see evidence of recent training or continuing professional development in editing, proofreading or indexing (successfully passed and completed within the last three years, and including at least one tutor-assessed core skills course).

If you are returning to publishing after a break of some years and have no recent training (within the past three years), you will be eligible to apply as an Associate Member. To upgrade to Full membership, you will need to fulfil the upgrade criteria as set out in the Upgrading from Associate to Full membership section of these Notes (page 2).

Please supply digital copies (PDFs or JPEGs) of training certificates with your application form.

Section 2: Experience

We want to see that you have enough experience to provide a competent service to your clients. This experience might have been gained from working in-house or as a freelancer for companies, public bodies or private individuals.

We need to know your relevant work history to date – who your employers were or if you've been self-employed, when and how long you worked for your employer/yourself, and what your responsibilities and roles were.

Make sure to include any experience as an intern in a publishing house.

Freelance experience. You will need to tell us:

- when you started freelancing;
- whether you do it part-time or full-time;
- the services you offer (e.g. proofreading, editing or indexing);
- how many hours you have spent on client work (i.e. time you have invoiced for) since you started freelancing. We appreciate this may need to be an estimate;
- the type of clients you work for (e.g. publishers, independent authors, businesses, government bodies).

Section 3: Projects

Whether you worked in-house or freelance, or a bit of both, we want you to tell us a little more about the best five projects you have completed in the last three years. We will NOT contact any of the clients you list.

As a rough guide, we are looking to see that you have worked on projects of substantial word counts, including book-length projects from a number of different clients. (Book-length here means at an appropriate word count for the genre or type of book project; for example, novel, novella, non-fiction or academic book, children's literature, reference book and so on.)

Book projects for publishers (of all sorts) or corporate, public policy or government reports, that demonstrate a high level of complexity and editing skill, are the best projects to include, as both the size of the project and the type of client show experience of the highest calibre. We would expect to see at least one or two projects with a word count over 60,000 words for applicants offering copy-editing and proofreading services.

Projects that you have written yourself will not be considered at all.

Indexers: you must also submit indexes you have completed for clients: two indexes for Associate membership, and four indexes for Full membership.

Note: please do not provide five projects all for the one client. We need to see that you meet the criteria for 'freelancer' by working for at least three different clients.

For each project, we want to know:

- the name of the client/employer (with a web address if available);
- the type of client (e.g. publisher, student, self-publishing author, business);
- the date the work was done (month and year of project start and finish);
- the type of work (e.g. novel, annual report, thesis);
- the total word count;
- the kind of work you did (e.g. editing, proofreading, indexing);
- how much time you spent on it.

References

Applicants for Associate membership will need to supply contact details of one referee.

Applicants for Full membership need to supply contact details of two referees.

Please ensure that you supply current email addresses for your referees.

Note: We expect you to be able to provide references that reflect the breadth of your freelance work to date. Therefore, your two referees should NOT be from the same organisation. We will only consider two references from the same organisation in exceptional circumstances, and only when it is clear that there is no overlap between the referees' roles within that organisation. You should also not provide two references for the same project.

We will contact your referees by email only and try to inconvenience them as little as possible. Please ask your referees' permission before giving us their name and make sure they are expecting us to contact them.

Your application form (and CV, if you include one)

When assessing your application, the Membership Committee also takes into account the standard of spelling, grammar, punctuation and consistency in your application form (and CV, if you include one), and your ability to follow a brief (these Notes and the instructions on the application form itself). Think of the material you send us as a sort of editorial test. Points will be awarded out of ten. As a bare minimum, your application is expected to have no typos or spelling errors (British and World English).

Additional information

There will be an opportunity on the form for you to give any other information that you think might add weight to your application. This could include awards received, for example.
